An IELTS student gets 1 minute to prepare for a cue card in speaking test part 2.

The candidates have numerous doubts regarding the effective use of this time.

In reality, the IELTS Speaking cue card is a daunting task for most students as they have to speak on a topic for 1 to 2 minutes. No doubt they get one minute for preparation, but test seekers usually do not plan to outline the content for speaking.

Due to this reason, working according to a plan is a prudent approach to passing your IELTS speaking test with flying colours.

Strategy:

Make judicious use of the 1 minute time by quickly garnering ideas on the topic given to you for speaking. Draw a list of relevant keywords that strike your mind. Take this time as an opportunity to outline the content you would like to use for your cue card. Although one minute seems to be less time for a student to prepare for the cue card, working with discipline candidates can make prudent use of it.

How to frame a cue card?

For some students preparing for cue cards is a daunting task, and according to them, they can't speak on any random topic for one to two minutes. From the outside, it seems challenging, but when you dig deep, you realize that it is not an uphill task.

The only issue which could make you miss the target is a lack of preparation. The students must leave no stone unturned to prepare for speaking tasks with determination, dedication and discipline. Their central focus should be on framing the correct answers for questions in the guesswork. The probable list contains about 80-90 cue cards.

When students have enough ideas for 80-90 topics of cur card, then they can handle any question with tremendous ease. There is no denying this conviction that practice is the key, and by doing regular speaking drills, a learner can expect a paradigm shift in her/her performance.

The best way to prepare for IELTS speaking is to work under the aegis of a seasoned trainer. Many learners try to learn on their own: however, that is an imprudent approach because students require the unabated support of teachers to correct their mistakes. In case the help of a coach is not available, getting input from some senior who is good at the English language is a worthwhile proposition.

Tips to crack IELTS Speaking with flying colours

1. Greet the examiner with a vibrant smile on your face. It is intuitively true that a smile improves our face value. Moreover, it brings enthusiasm and an optimistic attitude. The positivity we have is contagious, and we transfer it to whosoever we meet. Therefore, it is vital to greet the examiner with a smiling face.
- Wait for the examiner to tell you to sit. Waiting for the examiner to say you to seat yourself is a prudent approach. Once the interviewer invites you, sit firmly and slide back in the chair instead off resting on the edge.
- Sit with a good posture and maintain eye to eye contact. There is no denying this conviction that our body language plays a pivotal role in creating a good impression in the interviewer's mind. Therefore we need to be mindful of our posture, and we should have proper eye to eye contact with the examiner. These small steps lead to a colossal impact and help us get the desired score.
- Speak naturally, and do not try a fake Kentucky accent. Speak naturally, and do not try a fake Kentucky accent. A few students have this uncanny knack for using a fake accent while taking their IELTS speaking test. They think that going beyond the conventional domain would help them pass the interview with flying colours. To their dismay, this is incorrect.

We should speak with our natural accent to create a good impression in the examiner's mind.

- Do not give answers in plain yes or no. Leave no stone unturned to provide lengthy answers. Most students tend to answer in plain yes or no. It seems easy but an ineffective practice because it irritates the examiner. While replying, you need to elaborate your stand, as it helps the interviewer to assess you properly.
- Understand the questions before replying. It is worthwhile to listen to the question attentively. Many students complain of getting low scores despite giving their best performance. The prominent reason for this is improper task response.

You should pay heed to what the examiner asks and try to understand the question by carefully listening to the words between the lines. A misunderstanding could make you give a wrong reply which could directly affect your score.

- For cue cards, make prudent use of the one minute available for the preparation.

For preparation for the cue card topic, the examiner provides one minute to the students. Making judicious use of that time is a must-have to score good marks. The best technique the students can adopt is to draw a mind map.

Although the student has to keep eye-to-eye contact with the examiner, occasional glances at the mind map are advisable. It helps the candidates to speak with the flow.

- Do not stop in between the cue card. Wait for the examiner to stop you. In the IELTS speaking test, you should have enough content to express your ideas. And when you stop in between, you fail on task response, and the examiner can deduct marks for this lapse. Therefore it is advisable to wait for the examiner to interrupt you.
- Do not focus on what the examiner writes on his/her paper because that would hamper your concentration. While taking your IELTS speaking test, your central focus must be listening to the questions carefully and giving appropriate answers. The examiners, in between, write your assessment in their papers. It would be best to refrain from peeping into the examiner's papers. That is often considered terrible behaviour on your part.

- Stay on the topic. Like the IELTS writing test, coherence and cohesion are significant parameters in the speaking test. Therefore, it is imperative to stay on the topic: however, there is no harm in giving a background story.
